The Bakken – America’s “Massive” Oil Discovery

By Paul Silver

The Bakken Formation is a large unconventional resource that underlies most of the western portion of North Dakota and eastern Montana. The 200,000 square mile Bakken Formation is a “source rock” that has been termed as “tremendous,” “unique” and “world class.” It lies within the Williston Basin, under the Eastern third of Montana, much of North Dakota, and some of South Dakota. It contains three of the nation’s largest oil fields. The Bakken Formation consists of three levels: Upper shale, Lower shale, and the Middle Member, which is a dolomitic sandy layer. The shales that comprise the Upper and Lower Members of the Bakken are world-class rocks. The Middle Member of the Bakken is flooded with oil and gas at high pressures.

Montana oil production dates back to the 1950’s. By the year 2000, the entire state of Montana produced 18 million barrels of oil. Four years later, this figure doubled to 36 million barrels due almost entirely to the application of horizontal drilling in the Bakken. For years, geologists believed that there were copious oil reserves in the middle Bakken. However, attempts to drill to this layer were stymied by technological barriers that simply made the oil economically unextractable. Recent technological improvements with respect to horizontal drilling techniques (spurred by the high price of oil) have finally made the middle Bakken economically viable. Once large-scale drilling commenced, these wells became the largest, most productive wells in Montana, North Dakota, and in the Williston Basin.

The Bakken controversy lies with how much oil has been generated, what it has sourced, and how much is ultimately recoverable. Since 2000, the predictions have been staggering. Some experts suggested that the Bakken may harbor the greatest discovery of oil in the United States since Prudhoe Bay. A draft study conducted by the late organic geochemist Leigh Price provides estimates ranging from 271 to 503 billion barrels (mean 413 billion) of potential resources in place. He believed that as much as 50% of it is recoverable, an important consideration since there are vast oil reserves in the world which are not calculated into any projections because their recovery is beyond the reach of technology and economics. To give that some perspective, all recoverable oil in the U.S. is estimated at 21.4 billion. In Saudi Arabia it’s estimated at 264 billion barrels. Dr. Price’s study was conducted while he was working for the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS), but it did not receive a complete scientific peer review by the USGS and was not published as a USGS product.

In April 2008, the USGS released its official assessment of oil resources in the Bakken, and although it reported a 25-fold increase in the amount of oil that could be recovered from that area compared to its 1995 estimate, the 2008 estimate was still far short of the 503 billion barrel volume cited by Dr. Price in his study. According to the assessment, North Dakota and Montana have an estimated 3.0 to 4.3 billion barrels (mean value of 3.65 billion barrels) of undiscovered, technically recoverable oil in the Bakken Formation.

Although 3.65 billion barrels of recoverable oil is still considerable, the U.S. imports approximately 10 million barrels of oil per day (for a total of 3.65 billion barrels of oil per year), so even if all the estimated undiscovered oil in the Bakken Formation were extracted today, it would only be enough to wean the U.S. off of crude oil imports for one year. Despite this sobering revision, the Bakken play on the North Dakota side of the basin is still early in the learning curve. Technology and the price of oil will dictate what is potentially recoverable from this formation. At $30 per barrel, the funds required to commercially develop these drilling techniques simply weren't available. At $60 per barrel, the risk/reward ratio shifted such that it made sense to allocate the money to develop the horizontal drilling techniques. In the future, if the price of oil were to fall to a certain level, drilling companies would stop looking for oil, causing oil supplies to shrink, assuming steady or growing demand. As demand drives the price of oil higher, companies will once again begin searching for new oil because of economic incentives—basic supply and demand at work. Further, if the price of oil increases to $90 a barrel, there will be more technology developed that is able to find new oil that was not economically extractable at $60 per barrel.

The following is a list of some of the oil companies currently operating in the Bakken Formation:

- EOG Resources (EOG).
- Marathon Oil Corporation (MRO).
- XTO Energy (XTO).
- Brigham Exploration Co. (BEXP).
- Northern Oil & Gas (NOG).
- Whiting Petroleum Corp (WLL).
- Continental Resources (CLR).
- St. Mary Land & Exploration (SM).
- Kodiak Oil & Gas Company (KOG).

One of our clients and favorite Bakken play is Northern Oil and Gas (AMEX:NOG)

Northern Oil is a nimble, low overhead E&P play that has substantial acreage positions in some of the most exciting oil discoveries in the United States, including the Bakken Formation. Northern Oil's access to the Reger Family's 2-D seismic data covering the Rockies represents a unique investment positive and a strong competitive advantage. This database enables the Company to identify, analyze, and acquire oil and natural gas "hot spots" prior to land values skyrocketing.

Armed with this powerful 2-D seismic data, the Company is able to investigate areas of interest and high production drilling zones and purchase nearby acreage with a relatively high probability for success. The Company nimbly acquires acreage positions that have not yet appreciated significantly in market value. Once an oil or gas play is discovered, the market value for the acreage can soar 500% to 3,000% depending on the expected production capabilities of the wells. Instead of flipping the land for a gain on sale, the Company develops the land in partnership with drillers and participates in the oil proceeds, which are expected to be significantly higher than gains on land sales. Northern Oil and Gas works with experienced drilling partners like Brigham Exploration who are contributing 3-D seismic data and are assuming the lion's share of drilling expenses.

As of September 30th, 2009, Northern controlled approximately 70,000 net acres in the Williston Basin targeting the North Dakota Bakken and Three Forks formations, which provides the potential to drill approximately 220 net wells using 320 acre spacing units. During 2010, the Company expects to drill 14 to 16 net wells in 2010 with drilling cap ex approximating $52 million. The 2010 wells are expected to target both the Bakken and Three Forks with a majority of wells being drilled by EOG Resources and Slawson Exploration with an expected ownership average of 15% working interest across the approximately 100 gross wells planned for 2010. The Company expects to exit 2009 at a run rate of approximately 2,000 BOEPD with production increasing at a rate of 20% to 30% per quarter.

During the quarter ending September 30th, 2009, Northern reported revenues of $5,146,972 from sales of oil and natural gas, compared to $1,362,655 for the three months ended September 30, 2008, representing growth of 278%. For the nine months ended September 30th, 2009, the Company reported $8,206,202 in revenues compared to $2,412,912 for the nine months ended September 30, 2008, representing growth of 240%. Northern reported net income for the quarter of $1,588,246 ($0.04 per share) for the three-month period ended September 30, 2009, compared to net income of $917,563 ($0.03 per share) for the three-month period ended September 30, 2008.

Florida Small Cap 30

The Florida Small Cap 30 highlights what we believe are the top 30 publicly traded companies in Florida with a market capitalization less than $500 million on a risk/reward basis. While we limit the number of positions to 30, the portfolio may temporarily contain less than 30 positions as the result of removing positions. To qualify for inclusion, companies in the WSR-Florida Small Cap 30 must have a market capitalization less than $500 million as well as met a certain number of valuation and performance based hurdles including, but not limited to, revenue growth, PEG ratio, tangible book value, and profitability. Changes to the Florida Small Cap 30 list will be emailed to WSR's subscribers via its Daily Notes publication and are updated each month in The Emerging Growth News.

WSR's Aggressive Growth and Speculator Focus Lists

Companies included in the WSR-Aggressive Growth list are primarily companies based outside of our home state of Florida and are generally trading at a significant discount to their peers, breaking out of long-term bases or have recently announced a significant event. To qualify for inclusion, companies in the WSR-Florida Small Cap 30 must have a market capitalization less than $500 million and must have met a certain number of valuation and performance based hurdles including but not limited to revenue growth, PEG ratio, tangible book value, and profitability.

Companies included in WSR-Speculator are typically early stage or turnaround companies which are frequently WSR clients and (in our opinion) have the potential for a three hundred percent return over the next three to five years. Changes to these lists are emailed to WSR's subscribers via its Daily Notes publication and are updated each month in The Emerging Growth News.

JANUARY'S TOP COMPANIES UNDER $5.00 AS MEASURED BY INSIDER BUYING:

Investors and analysts look to the buying and selling trends of insiders, who are typically long-term investors, for clues to the broader market outlook. According to Ben Silverman, InsiderScore.com's director of research, "Insiders have been very accurate in terms of calling market bottoms, both temporary, in terms of corrections, and troughs."

Although insider buying is a useful tool to consider when making a decision on which stock to buy, it should be looked at carefully lest it give a false positive signal. Investors need to look behind the headlines and conduct their own research before buying on this basis. For example, option exercises can also give false signals.

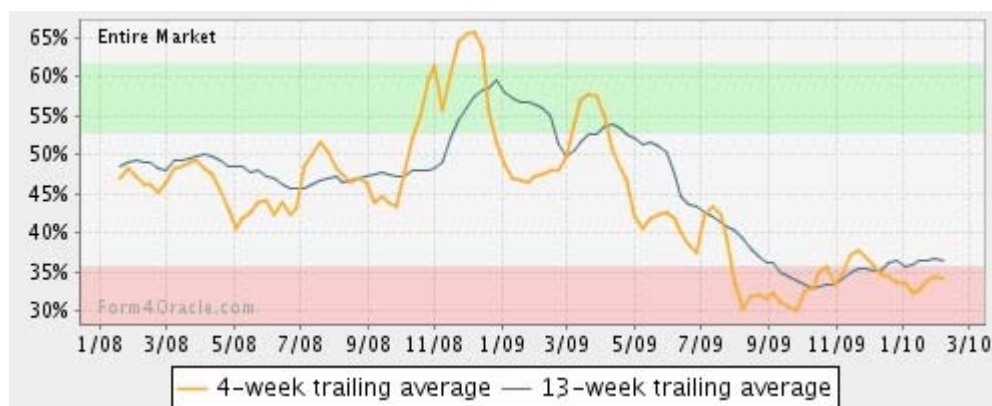

This section summarizes the companies (trading under $5.00 per share) with the greatest amount of purchasing by insiders during the previous month.

DISCLAIMER - Wall Street Resources is an emerging growth company specialist, which publishes financial reports with respect to some of the securities that it covers and provides a newsletter and daily notes focused on micro-to-small capital companies on a subscription basis. The information contained in these publications is based upon sources, which we believe to be reliable, but is in no way warranted by us as to accuracy or completeness. The information contained herein is subject to change without notice, and we assume no responsibility to update the information in our financial publications. We, our affiliates, and any officer, director or stockholder or any member of their families may have a position in and may from time to time purchase or sell any securities discussed in our financial publications or included in our newsletters. An employee, author, officer, or a director of the firm, or its affiliates, may serve as a director for companies mentioned in our financial publications. There may be instances when fundamental, technical, and quantitative opinions may not be in concert. Our affiliates may from time to time perform investment banking or other services for, or solicit investment banking or other business from, any company mentioned on this web site.

Past performance does not guarantee future success, and an investment in the model theoretical portfolio might lose money. Dividends and commissions are not included in performance calculations. The model theoretical performance includes performance history of the model micro-capital portfolio. The theoretical performance contains many high-risk speculative stocks, which tend to be more volatile and more illiquid than larger more established companies. The theoretical performance of the model does not represent actual trading and does not reflect material economic, psychological and market factors that might have impacted the results if actual money had been invested.

While no companies pay a fee to be included in our micro-capital portfolio or newsletter, certain companies, which are published as featured companies on our website, pay a due diligence fee for participation in the Wall Street Resources' financial publication and distribution program. In compliance with Section 17(b) of the Securities Act of 1933, detailed information regarding compensation from such companies is included on the last page of such reports, is explained in the disclaimer located at <http://wallstreetresources.net/disclaimer.html>, and is listed below. Tax consequences must be carefully considered. Wall Street Resources, Inc. is a financial publisher and not a broker/dealer or registered investment advisor, and thus all trades and actual trading, decisions are made solely by the individual investor, not by Wall Street Resources, Inc. Wall Street Resources, Inc. and/or the employees of Wall Street Resources, Inc. will not be held responsible for any losses that might occur from the use of the information provided in our financial publications that might be acted upon by an investor. Changes in our theoretical portfolio and current quote prices are made as of the last trading day of each month and based upon the closed price.
